

“Best Ad Ever!”: Salman Khan Breaks The Internet, Bollywood Can’t Keep Calm Over His Latest Drop

Okay, what just happened!?!

Bollywood’s favourite Bhai Salman Khan just dropped a new ad for super.money and within minutes, Instagram basically turned into a full-blown Bollywood watch party. No heads-up, no warning... Bhai arrived - and the internet hasn’t kept calm since

Watch the VIRAL AD here:

No larger-than-life storyline. No screaming background score. No over-the-top drama. Just Salman Khan — cool, effortless, unbothered... and somehow owning the frame without even trying.

And clearly, that was enough.

Because the comments section? Absolute chaos.

Siddhant Chaturvedi came in hot. Varun Dhawan dropped applause. Raghav Juyal couldn’t stop laughing. One after another, Bollywood jumped in and suddenly, it was no longer just an ad anymore... it was a moment.

But the mic-drop? Farah Khan.

No filters, no holding back — just one line:

“Best AD EVER.”

And honestly, that pretty much summed up what everyone was thinking.

Fans didn't stay quiet either. From "Love you bhaijaan" to full-blown fangirl/fanboy meltdowns, the post quickly turned into a Salman Khan appreciation thread. People quoting his old dialogues, calling out his swag, and basically agreeing on one thing - no one does it like him.

What's even more interesting? This drop comes right when IPL ads are going all out — bigger, louder, flashier than ever. And then comes Salman... doing the exact opposite.

No drama. No noise. Just vibes.

And somehow, that hits harder.

Because when Bhai just shows up, says the line, and walks off — you don't scroll past.

You watch. You replay. You comment.

And clearly, Bollywood did the same.

Because when the industry reacts like this... you know it's not just an ad anymore.

It's the moment everyone's talking about.
